ARLINGTON HIGH SCHOOL

ARLINGTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Dear Students,

Your student days at Arlington High School are over,
and you are going on to other schools, other teachers,
other lessons, other opportunities, and other obligations.
The 1966 Indian Staff has chosen as a theme for your book,
The Spirit of '66. You have the book and the theme to take with you on your way, a souvenir of Arlington High School.

The '66 is your class, a symbol of that which does not change in your lives. The Spirit must come new to you, new in each day, new in each act. And here, in Spirit, may I call to you as a voice from '66, a voice speaking for your teachers and from your heritage, wishing you the Spirit that renews, the Spirit that refreshes, the Spirit that cheers, the Spirit that has lived in great Americans and in all good men and women, everywhere and always.

May that devoted Spirit live in your lives,
also: The Spirit of '66!

Raymond S. Locke.

MR. GERARD G. KEMP
Assistant Principal

May the same spirit of the Class of 1966, a spirit of well deserved satisfaction in your accomplishment, be yours in the years ahead.

As you look to the future, remember this heritage will help you face your responsibilities to your society, to your country, and to yourself.

May success be yours in the years to come.

DEDICATION

Our program is gratefully dedicated to Elizabeth W. Sampson, recently retired director of Arlington High School's Dramatic Club. Because of Mrs. Sampson's excellent leadership and direction over the past eleven years, our Dramatic Club has won several honors including recognition of excellence in the Massachusetts Dramatic Festival. Besides her work in this high school, she has served as a prominent contributor to the Massachusetts Secondary School Drama Association, and has been made a life member of that organization. Our Dramatic Club is proud to pay tribute to this creative and dedicated woman.

1. NATIONAL MERIT SEMI-FINALISTS

In '65-'66 Gordon Davidson, David Grano, Michele Langer, Charles Pidano, Jan Prescott, Philip Thayer, and Mark Tuller brought honor to themselves and to AHS by qualifying as National Merit Scholarship Semi-Finalists. Does this academic distinction imply that the seven Semis were eggheads, students who locked themselves into their rooms every night for five or six hours of studying differential equations and writing esoteric compositions? Not in the least. As a matter of fact, these seven individuals spent so much time on outside interests that it is questionable whether they ever did any assigned homework at all.

Their aggregate array of extracurricular activities included: playing varsity football, editing the Chronicle and the Indian, performing in the marching and dance bands, serving as a lab assistant, acting as members of both the math and science quiz teams, running the French Club, and forming the AHS Civil Rights Club.

Mark Tuller summed up the dilemma of this group in general when he lamented, "By the time I finish with my extracurricular activities, I have barely enough time left to do my homework."

1. NATIONAL MERIT SEMI-FINALISTS—G. Davidson, P. Thayer, J. Prescott, C. Pidano, M. Langer, D. Grano.

2. MERIT COMMENDATION WINNERS

Holy Popcorn! This year AHS had twenty-three students who received National Merit Letters of Commendation. Those are more Arlington pupils than have ever before earned them. Only 38,000 students across the country distinguished themselves by being awarded these letters. Our commendation winners will go to good colleges and bring more distinction to the school. Oh, boy, are we ever proud of them. By their performance on the test they have shown a high ability in English usage, vocabulary, mathematics, social studies and science reading comprehension, which means, more or less, that they can speak English, use big impressive words, figure out the tricks of MSG-type math, and read. What was the reaction of the Letter-winners upon learning of their great honor? In the words of one of them who was asked this question, "When we were told that we had won Letters of Commendation, we all wanted to get our hands on those semi-finalists. If it hadn't been for them, we'd be in the running for some scholarships."

3., 4. STUDENT COUNCIL

1965-66 will be remembered as the year of the emancipation of the student council. The council, under the progressive direction of faculty adviser, Miss Tatum, was an active and influential organization which undertook many worthwhile projects. The frequent bulletin that "student council members are to report to room fifty-three after school today" gave evidence to the school that this was an interested and hard-working group.

The student council's biggest accomplishment was the raising of money to purchase a long-hoped-for electric scoreboard for the football field. Other undertakings included a student-faculty tea, the sale of AHS book covers and folders, serving as guides on Parents' Nights, and helping in producing the top-ten record, "Sounds of AHS."

Senior officers were: president, Frank Ciano; vice-president, Paul Collins; corresponding secretary, Kathleen Calandrella; recording secretary, Donna Villone; and treasurer, Thomas Spengler. Senior class officer council members were Randall White, Daniel Kelley, Donna Sweeney, and James Beggan.

jian, B. Balboni, R. DiStefano, J. Deveau, V. Binkoski, T. Spengler, J. Clark, M. Picardi, P. Iantosca, N. Urquhart, M. Mulcahy.

5. FRESHMAN STUDENT COUNCIL

So that they would not be entirely isolated from the rest of the school, the freshman students were given the opportunity to elect representatives to the Student Council. This dynamic and forceful class voted for homeroom representatives and alternates, who in turn elected a freshman president, vice-president, treasurer, and secretary. Their choices were Tony Lyons, Brian Dacey, Pamela Whitney, and John Binkoski, respectively. The thirty homeroom representatives plus the four officers attended every student council meeting (except those about which the upperclass council members didn't tell them).

Thus, the freshmen, if not always the most influential members of the council, were at least the most numerous. Their chief accomplishment was the holding of a freshman pep rally and dance one afternoon "for freshmen only", which was a direct counter-attack against the Tecu Club, from which they are excluded.

6. VOCATIONAL STUDENT COUNCIL

Education is fundamental to our democratic way of life. Realizing this, the students of Arlington Technical and Vocational High School have become highly specialized in their respective desired occupational fields.

Each year industry's demand for more competent craftsmen has produced notable changes in the requirements for graduation. As a result, the Class of '66 claims the distinction of being the most skilled and highly trained graduating class to date.

As mentioned in President Johnson's State of the Union Address (1965), "Every child must have the best education our nation can provide." To help provide for this education on a technical level, the government has supplied funds to help furnish "Tech" High with the latest in equipment.

Many changes took place at the school during the past four years. New equipment poured in, more classrooms were added, requirements for gaining admission to T. & V. High were made stricter, and the students took an increasingly greater part in school activities.

Those who weren't taking part in extracurricular activities found employment after school, whereby their newly acquired skills served to give them experience in the practices of industry and provided the financial rewards which will be useful for continuing their education on a post-secondary level.

7. GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

Just as the Red Sox have Minor League teams from which they can draw promising players up to the mother club, so the AHS Girls' Choir has its "minor league," better known as the Girls' Glee Club.

The Girls' Glee Club is composed entirely of freshmen who spend many afternoons practicing under the direction of Manager McElhiney. A girl must participate in all Glee Club activities for a year before she is given a tryout for the "major leagues"; that is, for the Girls' Choir. (This rather strained analogy to baseball teams will just have to stop, for Mr. McElhiney is also in charge of Girls' Choir and there has been no manager who ever ran major and minor league teams at the same time.) After their year of learning how to harmonize, vocalize, and in general, sing, the members of the 1965-1966 Girls' Glee Club are ready to move up next fall when they will attempt to become members of the Red Sox . . . er, that is, of the Girls' Choir.

8. ORCHESTRA

Members of the Arlington High School Orchestra have provided musical programs for activities scheduled throughout the year 1965-1966. Under the expert guidance of Mr. L. Hassler Einzig and Mr. Richard E. Laman, the group played at assemblies and for the Dramatic Club show, Rebel Without A Cause.

In their final year, seniors participated in the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, The Pirates of Penzance, and in the annual concert. Also, with fellow members, they attended rehearsals regularly to increase their skill and perfect their techniques.

The Orchestra helped to promote an interest in music by playing at the Junior High East and joining in community efforts. Inclusion of both classical and modern selections contributed to the versatility of the group.

Active in planning for the year were the officers: Paul Collins, president; James Baker, vice-president; Deidre O'Flaherty, secretary; and Paula Magnuson, treasurer.

9. BOYS' GLEE CLUB

The Arlington High School Boys' Glee Club was undoubtedly one of the most changed organizations in the school this year. With twelve illustrious members, this extremely proficient assemblage of musically talented young men performed for the school on several occasions during the year. In previous years the club had done little more than serve as an outlet for the boys' chorus of the Gilbert and Sullivan Club. In 1965-66, however, things were quite different. Under the brilliant direction of Mr. Richard McElhiney, the club, augmented by several freshman voices which aided the tiring vocal cords of the aging upperclassmen, started to function as a separate organization. Much of the boys' singing was done in the barbershop quartet style, but at various times, they tried out almost every type of vocalizing and usually met with a good deal of success. Hopefully, next year's Boys' Glee Club will continue the progress begun by this year's group of crooners, who have well earned the right to be called "our answer to the Beatles."

nish. Standing: P. Littlefield, D. Floreen, S. Hone, D. Dacey, J. Fachang.

10. SKI CLUB

The Ski Club, a group almost as serious as their photograph implies, after a full year of running around with next to nothing in the treasury and constant skirmishing with contrary officers who masqueraded as Stein Eriksens, emerged triumphantly with the most successful year ever. Novice Hans Wolfgang Coffey was one of the ringleaders in the attempt to superimpose diddly policies on the club.

The club started out with various ills, the foremost being no adviser. After a brief reign as adviser, Miss Martin turned over to Miss Wohllebe the ultra-hard task of serving as adviser. Mr. Pratt, the dedicated yearbook consultee, also aided the club to become recognized as a full-fledged, red-blooded Arlington High School organization.

Through the efforts of Mr. Pratt, Mr. McElhiney, and Mr. Locke, the Ski Club had its first excursion of the school year to Killington, Vermont, on December 7, 1965. This trip was enjoyed by all except for Dave Ryan, who hit a tree, Berg Keshian, who went sailing through the woods, the trees almost ripping his pants off, and Jane Egan, who had to have her skis nailed to her boots.

The second extravaganza took place on January 22, 1966, at Mt. Snow, Vermont. Dave Floreen, who prefers skiing on sanded Arlington streets, couldn't make the trip. TSK! TSK! Dave did not realize the irreparable blow that he dealt to the club through his absence on this trip. It is fitting to announce at this time that Jane Egan successfully completed one run down the beginner slope by the end of the day. On the first trip, the benevolent Ed Searles spent the entire day instructing members; on the second trip Ed was assisted by Walter Zschirnt, Berg Keshian, and Bruce Balboni.

As you may have heard, these instructions were of supreme caliber, thereby proving the value of a ski club. This trip was just as successful as the first, although there were some difficulties. Most of our party was held up in the rental room for two hours, so skiing did not start until after noon.

Other trips planned took place in February, March, and April.

It's difficult to tell exactly what will happen to the club in the future; perhaps the pseudo-Eriksens or the empty treasury will catch up to it, or perhaps they will be conquered by the zenith of control and the ultra-organization displayed by the president and vice-president. But at any rate, many long range plans have been made and many opportunities await other classes in the future. I, the mother, father (circle one) of my son, daughter (circle one) give my son, daughter (circle one) permission to attend the . . .

11. GIRLS' CHOIR

The AHS Girls' Choir is composed of one hundred girls who meet in classes twice a week. Freshman girls and all boys are barred from the choir, undoubtedly making it one of the most exclusive organizations in the school. What really gives the Choir class, however, is that it is the only course offered for which the students must pay. (Dues 50¢). And why do the girls willingly pay that staggering fee—are they really devoted to music? Yes and no. The truth is that the Girls'

Choir is perpetuated by virtue of the attraction exchange concerts to neighboring high schools hold for its members. On concert days, at least once a year, not only do the girls miss classes, but also they are given free lunches at the schools they visit. With such benefits as these offered to its members, it is no wonder that the Girls' Choir is one of AHS's most enthusiastically supported clubs.

12. GOLF TEAM

After finishing a successful season last year with losses only to league-leader Waltham, the golf team is looking forward to an unblemished record this year. The team, composed of six returning veterans, among them seniors Ken Diskin, John MacKinnon, and Spike Gurney, has experience in every position. Four of the six starters are returning for their third year and captain Ken Diskin is making it number four.

The key to the strength of this year's team, however, comes from balance. The seniors are combined with three juniors: Paul Flynn, Dan Diskin, and George Thompson.

As far as individuals are concerned, this year's team has some of the finest golfers in the state, since all the members of the team can shoot in the seventies. Paul Flynn won a local tournament held last year at Arlington High, and Ken Diskin won the Junior Championship at Meadowbrook Country Club.

Under the direction of Mr. Lowder the team plays six matches in the Suburban League and some additional inter-league matches. The team is hoping for a league championship and for possible state victories.

20. CHRONICLE

Stimulating the mind of the massive student body at Arlington High School is the school's monthly journalistic contribution, the Chronicle. Volume XXXVI of the paper managed to appear the customary eight times despite many "technical" difficulties, some of which induced ulcers.

Satire, the best developed phase of creativity in the paper, instilled within the readers a keen interest, an anticipation of forthcoming articles in the general format of "Intramural Rawhide." "Supergirl," and other pictorial masterpieces of friendly raillery added a new light flavor to the Chronicle.

Undoubtedly, the 1965-66 Chronicle will be recalled as the volume of controversy concerning the relative mundane qualities of "Scene Around." Both sides debated, often vehemently, the validity of their respective evaluations of the back page.

While maintaining reader interest through tempered humor, the Chronicle sustained a high level of journalism in expressing sincere student opinions on current moral and political dilemmas. Also in the serious literary tone, the Chronicle afforded a communicative contact between the general student body and the smaller group activities. Coverage of the Allied Youth Washington trip, the Civil Rights Club projects, and other specific activities allowed the readers to share a portion of the experience that those involved gained. The purpose of a school newspaper should be to serve as a binding force of school spirit. The Chronicle strove to accomplish this end.

Controversy that was contained within the prudent limits of decorum contributed to the ultimate popularity of the paper. The strong-arm coercion of Jim Began and his persuasive circulation staff, which included Mr. Sampson, also contributed greatly to the paper's popularity.

The Chronicle Staff wish Mr. and Mrs. Sampson a happy retirement.

21. EARTH SCIENCE CLUB

To begin with, the members of the '65-'66 Earth Science Club were, above all, really down to earth. Never has there been such a group dedicated to rooting out the facts, digging deep, and unearthing startling new discoveries. One of the more interesting pieces of ground-work done was the counting of grains of sand in various samples of the forementioned substance. Covering different ground, others in the club were literally "planted" in a project involving flowing water as an instrument for the causation of erosion. To tell the truth, what they were actually doing was building variations on sand castles, making valleys and mountains instead of the traditional buildings. Don't be mistaken; not everyone in the club had his roots in the soil. Some of the club members had a rather frustrating time trying to make AHS another center of the numerous space shots. After building their homemade rockets, the boys went to the Higher Ups to investigate the possibility of launching the products of their handiwork. All systems were A—OK, to coin a phrase, until someone classified the highly advanced and extremely technical packages of propulsion as common fireworks. After having suffered such a blow to their egos (fireworks indeed!), the boys were seen working feverishly on an inertial guidance system capable of reaching Maple Street. Much of the credit for the rapid growth of this relatively new club goes to its adviser, Mr. Meserve—he's really the salt of the earth.

22. MATH TEAM

"Starting at left elementary functions is three-year veteran Marilyn 'Matrix' Sprinkle; at defensive trig equations, senior Gordon 'Gauss' Davidson; at right triangle, speedy Jana 'Geometric Mean' Perry; at interior angles of polygons, Stephen 'The Solution' MacLean; holding down the middle arithmetic position, Robin 'Extraneous Root' Langer." Such an unlikely introduction never preceded a math league meet. Nor did the cheerleaders ever encourage our team with the stirring cadence of "Come on, math team, get up and know."

Such is the fate of the lonely calculator, searching for the elusive key to a challenging problem. The scoreboard clock marches swiftly from ten minutes to zero; our players do not have the merciful salvation of an emergency time out. The answer, the complete answer, only the answer, is needed to score. Tallies on the chalk board amass, and the teams take their ranks. Behind in the last round, our team yearns for the fifteen-point equalizer, the team question. A last minute rally could secure a victory. What happens to the sharp Arlington brain trust? They forget the factorization of cubes and  $x^{15} + 1$  remains unsimplified. Third place—the customary spot for Arlington. Good, but not good enough!

Metaphysically kicking themselves on the long trip home from Haverhill, the competitors second guess themselves and frustratedly realize their errors. Fortunately, there is a cause for elation; the food was good. Mr. Eaton and Mr. Sampson sprinkle sarcastic salt that aggravates the wounded intellects of those who now believe that they forgot to "bring their best wits with them."

22. MATH TEAM—J. Perry, S. McLean, G. Davidson, R. Langer, M. Sprinkle.

23. SCIENCE CLUB

The 1965-66 Arlington Senior High Science Club was a small, but highly dedicated, group of "budding" scientists who met whenever they felt a meeting was necessary (not often) and then sat around discussing anything from two-headed planaria to relativity theories. A spirit of quiet serenity always seemed to overhang these "gatherings"; no one, except, perhaps, Mr. Manning, the club's sponsor, was at all upset as long as a quorum of five persons managed to drag themselves to each meeting. Under the leadership of president Norman Berube, vice-president Clifton Jay, treasurer

Steven MacLean (whose treasury never exceeded the sum of fifteen dollars), and secretary Jean Matheson (who invariably lost most of the notes she ever took), the club enjoyed an interesting year. The members did, however, manage, under the strong-arm coercion of Chairman Marilyn Sprinkle, to rally themselves long enough to present the Seventh Annual AHS Science Fair. Other than for those few hectic weeks of mad scurry, though, the year was a very tranquil one indeed.

24. LAB ASSISTANTS

"Double, double, toil and trouble; fire burn and cauldron bubble . . ." incants the slight figure hunched over the chlorine generator which is disappointingly inactive. Several rooms away, two fine young lads are playing with advanced Erector sets in a seemingly vain attempt to set up a physics "crane boom" experiment. They are entertained by the cacophony of fifteen Petrie dishes simultaneously cracking upon contact with the biology lab floor. The chances for anything interesting ever again happening in all three of the labs at once are almost non-existent. Unfortunately, the lab assistants' year was, as usual, almost entirely lackluster, and this continual excitement has created the stereotype of the mousy assistant busily absorbed in his life-fulfilling task of preparing the next lab. Such a blanket generalization cannot be allowed to remain unaltered! A few of the unusual events that took place this year: Miss Rounds was attacked by a vindictive snake that obviously must have flunked Latin; the above mentioned chlorine generator ran amok and emptied the chem lab in a record fifteen seconds; the monkey of "the monkey and hunter" experiment fame successfully avoided the well-aimed projectile for seven straight attempts. This year's set of lab assistants (they come cheaper by the dozen) was almost emphatically not of the meek mold.

25. LIBRARY CORPS

Any senior who ever spent an enlightening study period in Arlington High School's cheery library must, of course, know about Library Corps, those "sedate" individuals who each year sacrifice one of their own study periods to serve their fellow classmates. This year's group was, perhaps, typical of those of past years; although few individuals ever bothered to attend the meetings run by president Mary Mahony, they all, at least, served their time in the library. Among the highlights of the year were a Christmas outing, (Everyone remember the "figgy pudding?"); the annual Book Fair in the spring; and the yearly May outing, which was, as usual, uproarious. The corps wishes to thank both Mrs. Hynson and Mrs. Butler for their kind assistance and guidance, though how these librarians ever managed to survive the year, which, incidentally, consisted of 1260 library periods, seems still a matter of speculation . . .

26. FRENCH CLUB

In room 307 of the Freshman Building, there was an atmosphere of quiet awe (occasionally marred by a freshman's giggle), as the French Club opened its first meeting under the presidency of Mark Tuller. The quiet became a stupefied silence as the club watched V.P. Dave Grano's abstruse parliamentary maneuvering, which allowed him to miss the first four meetings without censorship. The quiet turned to a bored yawn when the rank and file discovered that there were eight times as many girls as boys in the club.

With Charlie Pidano in control of the funds, the club sailed on smooth financial waters for the most part, although the ship was perilously overloaded with deficit. Pat Danielle, erstwhile secretary, soon left the club (Do not prolong the metaphor of a boat, lest you come to "rats leaving a sinking ship"). Pat was replaced by Anne Pidano, who took office after an encouraging vote of acclamation.

The club's sponsor this year was Miss Blackall, who shared without stint her room, her interest, and her Allied Youth candy. For the senior members of the club, Miss Blackall was an unexpected blessing: she was fourth consecutive adviser in as many years, and, as one of the most junior members of the club, she knew enough to keep her place.

In a trifle more serious vein: the French Club had a good year, and it heartily thanks Miss Blackall.

26. FRENCH CLUB—P. Danielle, D. Grano, C. Pidano.

27. BEDFORD HOSPITAL VOLUNTEERS

It is Tuesday afternoon at Arlington High. The time is ten minutes of two. A familiar metallic buzz suddenly penetrates all classrooms. "The bus will leave for Bedford promptly at two o'clock," intones Mr. Kemp. "All those planning to go must be ready in front of the school." The P.A. clicks off, and classes resume. Here and there in the building, a student rises proudly from his seat and stalks from the room, confident that his name has appeared on the morning teachers' bulletin. These are our Bedford Veterans' Administration Hospital Volunteers, perhaps best known among their classmates for their parting smirks as they escape the last fifteen minutes of sixth period each Tuesday.

A very serious facet of our stalwart Volunteers, however, is generally unknown to their fellow classmates. At the Veterans' Hospital, these Arlington students perform a host of tasks, working as aides in the wards, in the pharmacy, in the dental laboratory, in the educational and physical therapy centers, and in the hospital's general office.

According to Mrs. Turner, the volunteers' director, the once-a-week program has served an important function at the Hospital; doubtlessly, it has also served an important function in the life of each Volunteer.

28. ART CLUB

Contrary to popular belief, the 1965-66 Arlington High School Art Club was not known as "Ben's Harem." True, the four officers, Jamie Wharton, president; Gloria Downing, vice-president; Sue Bowlby, treasurer; and Roberta Black, secretary, were girls (obviously) as were all the other members of the club except for Ben Nahabedian. The primary purpose of the club, however, was not to surround Ben with forty-five beautiful girls, but rather to provide the opportunity for those interested in art to have the materials, the room, the atmosphere, and the guidance of Mr. Robinson to help them. The club members stayed late on Monday afternoons, madly creating "masterpieces" in an informal and congenial setting under the inspiration of the club motto, which was, to misquote the immortal bard, "We're for art now."

29. CIVIL RIGHTS CLUB

The Civil Rights Club embarked this fall on its first full year of existence. The most pressing order of business confronting president Michele Langer was the reallocation of official duties, which entailed assigning erstwhile secretary Jan Prescott, best known for her remarkable ability to take notes without pencil and paper, to attend ACRC board meetings (grueling all-night forums held regularly once a month in smokey, adult-filled living rooms) and herself to represent the club at PEOPLE Meetings (exhausting all-night sprees held erratically, as the members feel motivated, usually three or four times a year, in smokey, way-out Harvard Square apartments). When the club members voted to have regular dues rather than to be assessed for each club expense, Dave Grano was made treasurer by acclamation, replacing Dan Tobin and gaining custody of the empty Skippy peanut butter money jar.

Highlights of CRC accomplishments for the year included a courageous job done licking envelopes for SNCC, the newly traditional and perennially unsuccessful attempt to carry out the survey project, and survival totally without membership from the junior class. Considering the club's progress since last spring, the membership feels that—under the continued guidance of faculty adviser Miss Vogel—possibilities for future fields of endeavor are unlimited.

30. LATIN CLUB

Well, the Latin Club failed again this year in its efforts to make Latin the national tongue of the U.S. Perhaps they were shooting a little too high when they took this goal upon themselves, but they felt that their twenty-two illustrious members were sufficiently cogent to make their objective become a reality. Maybe next year's club will experience better luck. After all, "Rome wasn't built in a day."

Although this main objective occupied much of their time, those in the Latin Club found a spot in their busy work schedules for the enjoyment of a blessed social life. Unfortunately, however, their first social venture of the season, a surprise birthday party for Virgil, was relatively unsuccessful. (He didn't even show up!) Much of the socializing was devoted to the production of a Latin assembly, which was devised as a propaganda scheme to win others to their cause. The assembly program included a dramatic presentation of the famous myth, "The Judgment of Paris," a musical rendition of "The Sound of Latin," several pertinent slides of the ancient world, and some rock 'n roll songs translated into Latin lyrics. The "Beatle" numbers were intended to sway the shallow-minded observers, while the seriousness of the myth was to lure the minds of the more intellectual. Their trip to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts served as an incentive for the already inspired members to maintain a deeper conviction in the belief that the Roman Empire must rise again.

The motto of this year's club was "Dum spirō sperō." ("While I breathe, I hope."), which indeed was typical of the attitude of warriors such as Bill Barton, Paul McKinnon, Bill Chin, Ron Cromwell, and Randy White. Members adopted the colors green and gold as their own, too. To the delight of the members, both the motto and the colors were preserved on a metal shield, which shall serve as a guidepost to victory for future Latin Clubs at AHS. A great amount of credit must be given to the loyal adviser, Miss Rounds, who was dedicated to the end.

31. ALLIED YOUTH

This year Allied Youth completed still another successful season, retaining its coveted position as the largest extracurricular organization at AHS. Furthermore, a very large percentage of this year's six hundred thirty odd members ("odd" here referring to either 635 or 637 rather than to the peculiarity of the members) helped the club a good deal more than by merely paying their $1.25 membership fee, which has been the extent of the average AY'er's involvement in the group in recent years. Although this significant increase in the output of the individual members can be attributed largely to a threat that no one would receive all-important "yearbook credit" for his membership unless he worked, statistics like these still help to create a good impression. After all, that was the best method anyone could suggest as an incentive for the members to work harder; and it did work!

Some of the high points of the AY 1965-1966 season were the dances, both stag and couples, the Allied Youth Open House (when the public was invited to learn about the workings of the club), the Christmas caroling and the party which followed, the Christmas Welfare Project, and, of course, the monthly meetings. Featured at these meetings were a number of well-versed and competent speakers who fulfilled the main purpose of AY by informing the members about misuses and ill effects of beverage alcohol, cigarettes, and narcotics. In general, each of the year's events was a success. As a note for posterity, however, it is advised from those in '66 "who know" that if it's profit you're looking for, hold a stag, not a couples dance. (This opinion is based on the fact that the group earned close to $350 on its first stag affair, as opposed to the $16.38 "haul" from the "Turkey Trot," which was restricted to boy and girl pairs.)

Just as the climax in some of Shakespeare's greatest works, the AY season witnessed its climax in December at the International Conference held in Washington, D.C. Thirty-four chosen delegates represented Arlington's Post #813 at the convention, which proved to be a rewarding experience for everyone who attended. The delegates had the opportunity to exchange ideas with their comrades from all over the United States and Canada; moreover, some are still exchanging letters!

As a final note, the members would like to express their appreciation to Miss Hutchinson and Mr. D'Antona, the AY advisers, who helped make this great year possible.

32. DRAMATIC CLUB

The Dramatic Club is one of the oldest extracurricular organizations in the school. It regularly stages two shows a year, one for the public, one for competition. This year's public show was Rebel Without a Cause, the story of the struggle between unsympathetic adults and a sensitive boy; for competition Moliere's Physician in Spite of Himself, a hilarious farce, was presented.

As usual, the real fun of the Dramatic Club was not on the stage, even though that was, of course, very important, but rather in the wings. An actor's moment of delight comes in the tingling sensation he feels just before going on stage: a sensation half of fear, half of delight. After long and arduous rehearsals, that is the moment of truth. Up to that time it has been mostly work, work, work. After the show is over come a big letdown and the perpetual dissatisfaction with self that leads to future amelioration. Outside of the social agreeableness of meeting many and sundry people (very important), and of receiving plaudits (which are always humbly and politely disclaimed), an actor's whole life and delight comes from these few moments of masochistic pain-pleasure, the tense moments before stepping onto the stage. Why? Some people spend their spare moments running madly around an open field with twenty-one others and an inflated ellipse . . .

34. GUIDANCE OFFICE ASSISTANTS

Amidst the flurry of activity which perennially inhabits the Guidance Office, one faction of the staff remains calmly, efficiently organized. These valiant workers are the Guidance Office assistants, a dedicated group of girls who altruistically sacrifice their much-needed study periods to perform invaluable and essential services for the Guidance Department and, indeed, for all of Arlington High. Clutching their pale blue slips bravely, they face the ridicule of classmates and miles of corridor to deliver faithfully their appointment notices throughout the school. In the Guidance Office itself, the assistants perform the formidable tasks of keeping the entire student body's program cards in alphabetical order, of stamping out appointment slips for re-admission to classes, and of poking their heads through office doorways to see which counselors are busy. Not only do the assistants thus keep our guidance counselors in line, but also they assume the responsibility for maintaining the proper arrangement of the Guidance Office's collection of college catalogues. Con-

35. PROJECTION CLUB

It is a typical day at Arlington High School. A student walks into class prepared for another period of listening to boring lectures and discussing uninteresting topics. But wait, what is that he sees? Oh, happy day! It is a movie projector, and yes, there is the screen set up in the front of the room. The class is going to see a movie this period. No boring lecture, no uninteresting discussion. The student never gives a thought, however, as to who is the unsung hero of this joyful occasion. No, it is not Batman. It is the hard-working member of the Projection Club who saw to it that the projector, screen, and film were in the room at the desired time and that the projector was in working order.

The boys in the Projection Club, under the direction of Mr. Charles Fagone, learn how to use and fix audio-visual materials. Whenever a teacher wishes to show a film or play a record, he merely has to send a message (stating his wish) to Mr. Fagone and almost immediately a Projection Club member will come puffing into the classroom with the desired piece of equipment. Let us remember that if it had not been for these boys (and the girls who give up studies to do the secretarial work for the club), we would have missed out on many period-consuming films during our four years at Arlington High School.

36. DEBATING CLUB

"For, even though vanquished, he could argue still;
While words of learned length and thundering sound Amazed the gazing rustics ranged around."

Fortunately, this year's team did not follow the example of Philip Goduti, a vanquished debater of years past, to whom Oliver Goldsmith's quotation well applies. "Gads" Goduti was noted not only for a remarkable equivocating skill but also for his deft application of pedantry and demagoguery during debates. Babbling for thirteen minutes without making a concrete point in one debate, Phil managed to refute his own case, to fabricate evidence, to alienate the judge, to debase his pompous opponents, and to lose his pants.

Seriously, the debating team this year applied itself to a successful building year in which underclassmen competed in contests concerning the arbitrary national topic, labor relations. Incidentally, the yearly questions consistently deal with remarkably dull, impertinent, or obsolete topics; the last two were medicare and unilateral disarmament. Our novice and varsity debaters diligently prepared and presented their eight-minute constructive speeches and five-minute rebuttals until they developed a respectable degree of forensic skill. The merit of a debate presentation is judged on the basis of reasoning, use of documentation, clarity, organization, and oral expression. During this formative year, each member of the club had ample opportunity to develop his oratorical skill or lack thereof.

Disappointingly, the senior class had no representatives on the squad this year. The debating club feels that the satisfaction and diversion that structured arguing provides would have been rewarding for the seniors who could have bolstered the team in inter-scholastic competition. Both Diane Curran, the president, and Mrs. Latimer, the adviser, however, worked enthusiastically to preserve this very worthwhile endeavor.

37. CHESS CLUB

Twenty faces stared intently at ten chess boards on odd-shaped black and white pieces which were engaged in mortal combat. Mr. Sampson, walking nervously up and down the aisles, scrutinized the positions. A mood of intellectual intensity hung over the room, interrupted only by an occasional tense, "Check!" or an elated "Mate!!" This was the AHS Chess Club in action, pitting ten of its best players, otherwise known as the Chess Team, against the formidable forces of an opposing school.

Despite the fact that many of the ten members of the Chess Team were playing for the first time this year, the team did remarkably well, placing third in the Greater Boston League. The credit for this achievement goes largely to the clerical efforts of Captain Glenn Mangurian (who spent most of his time calling up other schools and making abstruse arrangements) and to Mr. Sampson, the club's sponsor, who conveyed the howling mob of players every other Friday to a neighboring school for the competition.

Friday afternoons, however, were the only times that this year's Chess Club ever remained serious. During the rest of the week, members of the club would gather in their favorite haunt, Room 5, and spend two or three hours (or at least until the janitor kicked them out) engaged in a number of mad antics. Who of the Room 5 group will ever forget the talks on philosophy, the discussions of math and science problems, the critical analyses of teachers, the wild kriegspiel games, Phil's philanderings with the girls, the eraser fights, the Batman-board sayings, and the penny-rolling contests? And who could forget Mr. Sampson, whose patience, understanding, and humor somehow managed to keep the members of the club from going completely wild? Mr. Sampson, like us seniors, is leaving AHS this year (he couldn't take another year as the club's adviser), and all those from Room 5 express their deepest thanks for his sponsorship.

38. FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA

The FHA is probably among the less widely-known clubs at school. Aside from the fact that the club boasts no senior members, one reason for this lack of publicity may be that most of the club activities are not intended to benefit the AHS student body. For instance, at Christmas time this year FHA conducted a non-perishable foods drive for the Saint Vincent de Paul Society. (The 1966 Indian humbly submits that a non-perishable foods drive for our own cafeteria might have been more to the point). We have faith, however, that underclass officers Angela Delia (president), Pat Fahey (vice-president), Mary Lou Egan (treasurer), and Nancy Flionis (historian), and faculty adviser Miss Truedson will profit by our suggestion and that AHS may look forward to a little homemaking action around the school next year.

39. SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club, having been in existence only two years, promises to be as successful, or shall we say as notorious, as the French Club, two years its senior. This year, with the aid of Mr. Sternburg who selflessly consented to act as adviser, President Steve Carroll, along with the other officers, somehow managed to organize several "original and somewhat intellectual" meetings slanted toward increased understanding of the life and customs of Latin American countries. Ideally, these meetings were to be conducted in Spanish, where for once, the members would be forgiven for glaring grammatical errors. Despite the courageous and rather muddled attempts of the members to communicate in this obviously foreign language, English predominated.

The second annual Spanish fiesta in Arlington was held during the Christmas season at a member's house. The golden voices of the members, however, failed to be euphonious during the sing-along, and only the spicy Spanish dishes, which dazzled even the tiniest feminine appetite, kept everyone too preoccupied for the grand finale. The traditional pinata rounded out the evening. With such an impressive list of activities, the Spanish Club may well outlive its chief competitor; namely the French Club.

HARMONETTES

Besides being the sophisticated young ladies which they are, the Harmonettes show an enormous amount of talent. Whenever they have an engagement, they put on a performance which is rated as A-plus by the audience. A note of humor is always prevalent and the program proves to be outstanding and professional. The Harmonettes is one of Arlington High's top singing groups.

Although the girls are usually alert, here is what you might find at a regular Harmonettes' rehearsal: laughing and joking, arguing about the new spring dress, or every girl working as hard as she possibly can. This is what goes into a truly great presentation and many memorable experiences for the Harmonettes.

AVE ATQUE VALE

On the sands of time, which has carried so many of us from Cotting High School into its second century as Arlington High School, are myriads of footprints, some of them giving heart to those who have been looking for their way. Our adviser for many years, Miss Binnig, is enjoying retirement, of course; and this year, Mrs. Sampson and Mrs. McEwen have left us to well-deserved leisure. Mr. Sampson is planning to retire in June. As we go to press, we cannot know of other faculty and staff members who may be going on to new opportunities to work and rest; so to all whose lives must become markings, the Indian Staff wishes in the Spirit of '66 "Hail and fare well!"

MAJORETTES

Let me die to the sounds of delicious music.
Mirabeau

It's half-time at an Arlington football game. The fans are emotionally drained from watching two exciting quarters of football. Suddenly the band blares forth, and onto the field prance the AHS majorettes . . .

The majorette squad this year was composed of ten regular majorettes, mainly seniors, who, under the direction of Kathy Calandrella, performed in the pre-game and half-time shows at football games, in football rallies, and in various parades held in Arlington during the year. A summer of preparation and practice before the football season gave the girls precision and grace, qualities essential in good twirlers. Once the season began one could usually find the girls, with their tape recorded music, practicing or relaxing by the music rooms. Saturday mornings, with their hair still in rollers and wearing their oldest skirts, the girls were up bright and early and on the field for one last practice. Finally, when the whistle blew, and the music began, it all seemed worthwhile: the fans enthusiastically greeted the unique shows and the performances of all the majorettes.

SAMETTES

Music should strike fire from the heart of man, and bring tears from the eyes of woman.
Beethoven

Although few people realize it, preparing a half-time show takes almost as much time as the team's football practice does. The seven Senior Samettes can attest to this readily; between mud, heat, and plain exhaustion, these girls (Nancy Cottrell, Denise Cullen, Barbara Guarente, Christine Mazmanian, Jean Prince, Nancy Union, and captain Ann Smith) helped Mrs. Bertagna whip up a polished show each week.

As seniors, we were old pros to the complicated kicks and steps (the lovely exceptions being Denise and Barbara, two really great troopers), but the new fields at Newton, Everett, Watertown, and Weymouth made us as uneasy as the others. Never will we forget trying to find the yard numbers on the Everett field and stopping five yards too soon!

Thanksgiving was our big and last game. Practices were long and hard because the field was awfully muddy, but we did not mind, since this was going to be a great show. The seven of us were a little sad and yet very glad that the show had gone so well. We had an exhausting but wonderful fall.

CHEERLEADERS

The 1965-66 cheerleaders will undoubtedly go down in the annals of AHS as the most injury-prone, the most original, and the most controversial squad.

The number of injuries suffered by this year's squad hit an all-time high with problems varying from pulled hamstrings, resulting from spectacular cartwheel splits, to broken bones and sprained backs.

The cheerleaders expressed their originality in many ways. A particularly good example was the first pep rally held for the football team in the fall. The surprise entrance of twelve boys, not too cleverly disguised as Somerville cheerleaders, not only started the year off with a chuckle, but also began one of the year's great controversies—boy cheerleaders. From this humorous skit evolved the idea that the addition of boys to the squad would increase the response from the fans.

A great deal of credit should be given to co-captains, Deidre and Maria, for their diligence and patience, and, as always, to faculty adviser Mrs. Coutts.

At the season's beginning, the outlook for the football team was bleak: according to Mr. Bevins, the team had the physical condition of strawberry junket; according to Mr. Burns, the team's amount of experience was unprintable; and according to a Boston newspaper, Arlington was headed for the worst season in a decade.

Well, it didn't happen that way. Under the sun on the practice desert (an appropriate name for the dust bowl near the Freshman gym), the three coaches whipped the team into shape with a myriad of drills and exercises. With captains Lopez and Deveaux bolstering up spirit, the offense and defense began to function as units.

Charlie Gott grabbed the chalk, and on the locker-room blackboard appeared a sign that dwindled from "twenty-four days to get in shape for Somerville" to "one more day."

When the season opened, the boys were anxious to go—not necessarily ready, but anxious. As the season progressed, however, the team began to work more smoothly, and by the Weymouth game, the boys were ready to make their coaches really happy.

Weymouth was a strong team, and more than once Coach Burns admitted that he was scared to play them. But he had also said more than once during the season: "You boys are a good team, and someday when you all have a good day at the same time, you'll knock someone out."

And although Weymouth was not completely knocked out, they did find themselves outclassed by a fired-up Arlington team. You should have heard the hand for Mr. Burns when he climbed onto the bus after the game.

GOING FOR AN EXTRA POINT

John Deveaux: "Football helped me to discipline myself." Al Lopez: "Mr. Burns teaches not only the game of football, but also the rules of life." Jimmy Smith: "I've learned not to quit." Barry Wright: "I learned the real value of competition." Vic Binkoski: "I would much rather be a participant than just an onlooker." Dom Apprille: "The only way to get ahead is by teamwork." Mike Whitney: "I have gained an insight to other people." Charlie Gott: "I think the players always felt that we could do well, and that's what we did." Rog DiStefano: "Our season was a success." Jimmy Beggan: "You see life has many obstacles as does football." Bill Matheson: "For the 'worst team' in ten years, I don't think we did that badly, finishing third in the state." John Driscoll: "Thanks to our fine coaching staff, our season was a complete success." Bruce Jeffrey: "There are just two words that can describe our season—All spirit." Tom Peters: "I have never seen a group of boys with so much spirit."

*Out of the strain of the doing

Kneeling: V. Binkoski, D. Apprille, J. Smith, T. Walsh, P. Morse—Co-captain, R. Costa, T. Peters, G. Hale.
Standing: Mr. Byrne—JV Coach, S. Donnelly, B.

One might say that this year's hockey season was successful. The team won the GBI title for the fourth straight year and ended up undefeated and untied for the first time in the school's, as well as the league's history. The team had six players who were chosen as league all-stars. They were juniors, Bob Havern, who broke the league scoring mark (which was held by one of those Newton chaps) with his total of 43 points, Jack Byrne, and Steve Donnelly, and seniors John Deveau, who copped the league's MVP, Pete Morse, and Jimmy Smith.

The 1965-66 AHS puck-chasers led the state in scoring with 91 goals, an average of more than 6 goals a game, and allowed the fewest goals (7) scored against them of teams in Mass. Though there are numerous other statistics that could be cited concerning the team, it is felt the team will longer be remembered for their nicknames. The first line was composed of Riddler, Dumbo, and Diz. This productive line is known to their parents as Steve Donnelly, who talks in riddles, Bob Havern, who has man-sized ears, and Co-Captain John Deveau, who is not always organized. What was probably the best second line in the state was a mixture of four boys, Poopsie, Chic, PM, and Glennels. The two seniors Tom Walsh and Chic Costa received their nicknames from members of the opposite sex, while junior Dennis Sullivan is rather tall and gangly. Junior Glen Hale's nickname was not so ingenious. The defensive corps composed of seniors, Mars and Hammer Hands, and juniors, Arrow and Barts. (Mars and Barts are just distortions of Co-captains Pete Morse's and Bob Bartholomew's names.) Arrow is Jack Byrne's nickname whose head, when enclosed in our crash helmets, resembles an arrow. Hammer Hands refers to Jimmy Smith and his enormous paws. Dom Apprille, our goalie, was commonly referred to as Topo Gigio, a little mouse who appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show.

This year's hockey team was just a great bunch of kids who played under the greatest hockey coach in the world, Mr. Burns, who has a lot of nicknames and who played for the greatest fans in the whole world—us, the kids of AHS.

LIGHTING THE LAMP

John Deveau: Hockey brought me a jacket, four trophies, eight banquets, a watch, a sweater, a false tooth, and that terrific trip to Toronto. Pete Morse: I know we have the three best high school coaches in the United States. Jimmy Smith: I shall never forget the comical incidents involving John "Dizzy" Deveau, finding his teeth and glasses. Tom Walsh: The first Waltham game was particularly pleasing to win. They were picked to win the League. Chic Costa: I like playing because of the spirit of competition. Dom Apprille: My teammates are great players and great friends. Tom Peters: While John Deveau was using my glasses, he scored about four goals.

*A time like this demands
Great hearts and ready hands. J. G. Holland*

Mr. Tucker, M. Healy—Manager, J. Cabeceiras, G. Smith, M. Whitney, J. MacKinnon, T. Quattrochi—

Captain, J. Driscoll, P. McKinnon, J. Donovan, N. Stratton, V. White—Manager, Mr. Hill—Coach.

Jump ball! With Captain Tom Quattrochi, the only returnee from last year's squad, "Red" Hill, new coach of the varsity basketball team faced with a choice, either using the seniors from last year's Junior Varsity squad, who had compiled a 15-5 record, or promoting the sophomores and juniors to the varsity and having a building year. He chose the former, going all the way with the seniors. Coach Hill appointed Paul McKinnon as a co-captain to aid Quattrochi.

The team geared itself for a game with a tough and highly-regarded Lexington quintet. The spirit and desire to win, plus outstanding shooting from Mike Whitney (20 points) and a miraculous shot by junior guard John Donovan at the buzzer, gave Arlington a 56-54 win. Well-balanced scoring and brilliant defensive play highlighted the second win over a taller Winchester team.

With such an auspicious start against these two non-league opponents, it appeared that this could be "the year," the year Arlington would qualify for the Tech Tourney; however, the Red and Gray could only win three more games while it lost fifteen, finishing in eighth place. Despite the disappointing season, John "Cabby" Cabeceiras and John Donovan finished among the top ten league scorers in the Suburban League.

For next year, Mr. Hill has some fine Junior Varsity players who saw limited varsity play and also freshmen Dave O'Leary and Jim Nigro, who were carried on the varsity squad all year and showed great potential.

DRIVING DOWN THE LANE

Tom Quattrochi: I had the honor of being co-captain. Paul McKinnon: The team had great spirit, and the crowd support was wonderful. Gerry Smith: Mr. Hill was a dedicated coach. Mike Whitney: Basketball keeps you in meeting and acquiring friends. John Driscoll: My teammates were all swell and hard-playing kids. John Cabeceiras: The best part of the year was the fact that no one ever gave up. Sandy Stratton: I have always looked forward to playing for the Arlington High Varsity. Gary Chalas: Mr. Hill was fair and understanding. John MacKinnon: The most outstanding thing that happened was the first game.

I wish to preach the strenuous life. Theodore Roosevelt

First Row: J. Cullinan, P. Donnelly, N. Stratton, T. Spengler, D. Kelley, D. Dacey, P. Corbett, G. Mangurian. Second Row: F. Fiekers, P. Morris, J. Cronin, P.

What kind of fools were they who ran for Arlington High? In all kinds of weather over many a mile, they suffered the aches and pains of "Heartbreak Hill" and "Mount Monadnock." But these stalwart harriers weathered the obstacles for a record of 5 wins and 2 losses, tying for second place in the Suburban Cross Country League.

The captain, Tom Spengler, ran undefeated, and along with converted sprinter, Dan Kelley, provided the strongest one-two finish in the league. Newcomer Sandy Stratton, captain-elect John Walsh, and junior Dave LaFauci rounded out the five man nucleus. In the league meet, Spengler finished first as his shadow, Kelly, finished second. Spengler went on to take second place in the State Meet. On the merits of his second place clocking, Spengler qualified for the New England Championship Meet where he closed out his three years of cross country running with a well-deserved fifth place.

What kept the harriers going was that proverbial desire to win, that presence of the finish line drawing nearer and nearer. As they glanced over their shoulders and saw their opponents gaining on them, their paces automatically lengthened, and they found themselves running to the rhythm of "Arl-ing-ton, Arl-ing-ton."

RUNNING QUOTES

Tom Spengler: "I have learned to endure physical pain and still drive on, and I have learned about people." Dan Kelley: "For my first year running cross country, I found that a great amount of desire is necessary, a completely individual effort."

"Last one there is a rotten egg."

Considering the very difficult practicing conditions, the team fared well. The team's undistinguished 2-5 season record is misleading. Two of the meets depended on the final event, the relay, which could have gone either way. The team was paced by the consistently point-earning seniors, including captain Dan Kelley, Charlie Gott, Tom Spengler, Jim Fratello, Bill Matheson, Dave Tannozzini, Lee Pearson, Mike Keefe, and Bob Oley. Notwithstanding the outstanding individual performances, the team functioned as a team and depended on all four classes for support. Coach James Kelley and Assistant Coach Ralph Faiola had a team and a season to be remembered proudly.

A report on this year's indoor track season would not be complete without mention of outstanding accomplishments of our miler, Tom Spengler. In addition to his remarkable performances in the regular season, Tom placed fourth in the Eastern States meet and, in doing so, broke AHS's twelve-year-old mile record.

Any winter weekday afternoon there are twenty odd red-suited boys running around in the eighty's corridor. What could these dozens of emaciated Santa Clauses possibly be doing? A casual inspection of the scene brings only chaos to mind—boys doing jumping jacks, knee bends, pushups, and yelling mystifying numbers. A longer, closer inspection will reveal that this group is the hard-working, ever-persevering indoor track team warming up. There is a "method in their madness." Because the high school has no regular winter (i.e. indoor) track, the team must practice by racing up and down the corridor.

LUNGING FOR THE FINISH LINE

Dan Kelley: Taking my job as a captain seriously, I tried to set an example for the rest of the team. Tom Spengler: I can never say why I started, but it is a challenge to improve. Jim Fratello: Track is a good sport for personal development and satisfaction. Charlie Gott: Any event in track takes effort and time if you want to be any good at all. Bob Oley: I've got to give the opponents credit because they were really good competitors.

After a successful season last year, this year's gymnastic squad made a determined effort. Co-captains were Dave Sullivan, competing in floor exercise, tumbling, and long horse vaulting, and Al Costa, competing in side horse and parallel bars. Greg Davis competed in high bar, long horse, vaulting, and parallel bars; Al Blanco, competed in floor exercise and tumbling; and Frank Campbell competed in side horse.

The team won its first five meets with little difficulty, and chances for an undefeated season within the league looked bright. But within two weeks the team lost their high scoring co-captains, Dave Sullivan and Al Costa, and side horse man, Frank Campbell, from injuries and other circumstances. With top men missing, the boys tried hard, but were only able to take second place in the Suburban Gymnastic League, losing only to Newton. Two members went on to win individual awards at the Suburban League Individual Meet—with Greg Davis, who won first place on the parallel bars, and Ray O'Neil, a junior, who won second place on the still rings and third place on the parallel bars—so they went on to compete in the Massachusetts Individual Gymnastic Meet, at Winchester.

"Kill it!!"

The girls' field hockey team suffered their first losing season in recent years, finishing with a record of three wins, four losses, and two ties. The loss of the entire defensive unit from the undefeated '64 team proved to be too much for the squad. Captain Sue Clarke led the scorers with seven, to bring her four-year total to twenty-two. Seniors Jayne Dumas and Barbara Govoni played well throughout the nine-game schedule and helped ease the problem of inexperienced defensemen with real hustle and determination. Goalkeeper Julie Fusco saw more action and more shots taken at the AHS net this year than in the three previous years combined.

"I can't reach it."

The 1966 girls' basketball team matched the '65 record with a 31 to 30 victory over Lexington in the final game of the season. Two losses to Weston and Winchester in the sixth and seventh games saw the possibility of a .500 finish, but the Lexington win enabled the girls to finish with a five and three record.

In the opening game, AHS broke their own scoring record with fifty-five points against an inexperienced Newton South team. Seniors Susan Clarke, Jayne Dumas, and Barbara Govoni led the team to victories over Watertown, Cambridge, and Belmont, while the third loss of the year came at the hands of Melrose in a 27 to 25 squeaker.
